HR Policy - Section 1. This section explains rule 1 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 2. This section explains rule 2 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 3. This section explains rule 3 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 4. This section explains rule 4 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 5. This section explains rule 5 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 6. This section explains rule 6 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 7. This section explains rule 7 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 8. This section explains rule 8 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 9. This section explains rule 9 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 10. This section explains rule 10 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 11. This section explains rule 11 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 12. This section explains rule 12 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 13. This section explains rule 13 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 14. This section explains rule 14 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 15. This section explains rule 15 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 16. This section explains rule 16 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 17. This section explains rule 17 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 18. This section explains rule 18 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 19. This section explains rule 19 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 20. This section explains rule 20 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 21. This section explains rule 21 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 22. This section explains rule 22 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 23. This section explains rule 23 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 24. This section explains rule 24 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 25. This section explains rule 25 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 26. This section explains rule 26 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 27. This section explains rule 27 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 28. This section explains rule 28 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 29. This section explains rule 29 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 30. This section explains rule 30 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 31. This section explains rule 31 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 32. This section explains rule 32 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 33. This section explains rule 33 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 34. This section explains rule 34 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 35. This section explains rule 35 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 36. This section explains rule 36 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 37. This section explains rule 37 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 38. This section explains rule 38 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 39. This section explains rule 39 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 40. This section explains rule 40 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 41. This section explains rule 41 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 42. This section explains rule 42 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 43. This section explains rule 43 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 44. This section explains rule 44 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 45. This section explains rule 45 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 46. This section explains rule 46 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 47. This section explains rule 47 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 48. This section explains rule 48 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 49. This section explains rule 49 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 50. This section explains rule 50 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 51. This section explains rule 51 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 52. This section explains rule 52 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 53. This section explains rule 53 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 54. This section explains rule 54 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 55. This section explains rule 55 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 56. This section explains rule 56 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 2 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 57. This section explains rule 57 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 3 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 58. This section explains rule 58 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 4 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 59. This section explains rule 59 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 5 years and reviewed every quarter.

HR Policy - Section 60. This section explains rule 60 of the hr policy for all employees. Employees must follow the procedure described here and inform their manager in writing. Any exception needs approval from the HR department. Records are kept for 1 years and reviewed every quarter.